Seek Aid of Congress To Prevent Presidents From Being Overworked

By W. H. ATKINS

For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The existing presidential duties which are believed responsible for the breakdown of both President Wilson and President Harding. The existing presidential duties are such as to compel him to follow a "killing pace" from the moment President Coolidge enters the White House, and friends hope to obtain Congressional authorization for the delegation of his minor powers to his cabinet officers. They contend the overburden of minor cares brought on the fatal collapse of President Harding and the near fatal breakdown of President Wilson.

down of President Wilson.

Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, close personal friend of the late President Harding, announced today that he would lead the movement.

"Congress must do something to relieve the president of duties which make him a 'super-clerk,'" Denby told International News Service. "There is no question but that the duties forced President Harding to overwork and brought on his lamented death."

Our statutes which require the president to be weighted down with clerical duties should be repealed, Congress should specially authorize him to designate certain of his subordinates to perform these duties."

The former president formally accepted an invitation to ride in the funeral procession. The former president announced his intention to participate in a note to President Coolidge. It follows:

"It will be with feelings of the utmost solemnity and reverence that I will attend. I regret to say my late illness makes it impossible for me to attend the exercises in the capitol."

"Allow me to express the hope that your administration of the great office to which you have been so unexpectedly called, will abound in satisfaction of many kinds."

A number of prominent Los Angeles bankers will address the gathering, no doubt dwelling on the significance of a new bank in this city.

Associated with Mr. Cooper in this enterprise is Jesse V. Rea, vice-president and cashier of the Federal Commercial & Savings bank. He states that this bank is a strictly Glendale owned institution, organized on a basis of personal service and numbering among its stockholders and officials such men as Owen C. Emery, E. U. HEAR PLANS FOR WINTER BASEBALL LEAGUE

Representatives of Eight Cities, Including Glendale, Discuss Project

Plans for a Class D winter baseball league, with Glendale as one of the eight teams included, were launched at a 7:30 o'clock dinner held Saturday night, August 4, in the blue room of the Los Angeles Athletic club, reports Jesse E. Smith, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who represented this city in the proceedings.

Among those present were Fred Clark, manager of the Pittsburgh Nationals, when, for three years, they were champions; Joss Clark, his brother; Gavy Cravath, former Philadelphia National star; Joe Rafferty, of Spalding's Los Angeles store; Lane, owner of the Salt Lake team; Weber, of the Los Angeles team, and many others prominent in baseball.

Plan to Fill Gap
The meeting was called in the interest of developing clean organized baseball in Southern California, to fill the present gap between the high school and the Coast league teams.

Representatives were present from Glendale, Long Beach, Santa Ana, Santa Pedro, Anaheim, San Bernardino and San Diego.

Jesse E. Smith, representing Glendale, states that among the points brought out were that the new league would be under the same supervision as Commissioner Landis exercises over all other professional or semi-professional leagues on the coast, and that it would be a winter league, starting after the Coast league season ended and ending early in the spring.

Limit to Salary
Other provisions would limit the salary of any player to $200 per month, and would hold the number of players on any one team to fourteen.

In addition to furnishing a great deal of valuable publicity to the cities having teams entered in this league, an opportunity will be afforded for boys who excel at baseball to step up into the big leagues a little more gradually than is possible at present, and at the same time, provide the cities involved with a program of good ball, states Mr. Smith.

Another provision of the proposed league will be that each team be provided with a fenced-in grounds and grandstand, in addition to complete uniforms and equipment.

A further meeting of those interested in this matter will be held Thursday, August 23, at a place to be announced later. It is desired, meanwhile, Mr. Smith states, that the consensus of opinion in each proposed city be obtained, with regard to the organization of a Class D winter baseball league.

COOLIDGE TO FACE FOUR PROBLEMS AT ONCE

New President Must Decide Upon Course of Action Immediately, Claim

By GEORGE E. DURNO

For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Despite the announcement of President Coolidge that matters of administration would not be decided upon after the late President Harding's funeral, the new chief executive today was confronted with a series of political questions. The president had a conference scheduled with John R. Adams, chairman of the Republican National committee. Matters of policy and executive appointments, were to be discussed. The problems facing the new president are known to involve political decisions, despite his stated aversion to this practice until after the funeral.

That it is impossible for the president to avoid the policies for the three days he has occupied the White House was evidenced yesterday in the visit of Senator Frank B. Brandegee, Republican. There was close conference with the senator for four hours.

Four Big Problems
Four problems of national significance, each involving a question of administration policy, now confront the new president. These are:

First—A definite understanding of the new president's position on the world court, on which President Harding sought to have this nation participate.

Second—The question of political expression. An impression is growing rapidly that there will be many changes in the administration.

Third—The agricultural crisis. The suggestion is being made in many quarters that Congress is to be called to deal with the situation.

Fourth—The question of a coal strike.

The world court will probably cause President Coolidge his greatest worry. It is understood the policies of President Harding's administration will be continued. Should President Coolidge endorse the court he will feel strong opposition from his party leaders.

Might Cause Breach
On the other hand, should the new executive abandon the fight for American participation and reverse the Harding policy, a wide breach would be opened between the White House and the state department with the possibility of resignation of Secretary Hughes as an anti-climax.

President Coolidge is said to be averse to calling an extra session of Congress. Party leaders in favor of such a move, however, are now endeavoring to show that an earlier call of the legislative bodies will work to the advantage of the new executive in giving that much more time in which to set up a record that would be carried before the Republican convention next summer.

In the coal situation President Coolidge already has placed himself on record as favoring a resumption of the Atlantic City negotiations. The historic handling of the Boston police strike, when he held that no one has the right to strike when to do so would injure the nation, is another example.

President Coolidge And Party Leaders Meet in Series Of Conferences

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—

Under the pall of gloom, President Calvin Coolidge today piloted the ship of state through a long series of political conferences in which he met party leaders of every faction and belief.

While his aides hastened to solemn preparations for the Harding state funeral, the president gave over four hours to the men who assisted his predecessor in managing the government of the United States. His callers ranged from cabinet members to bureau chiefs.

His most significant conference was held with John R. Adams, chairman of the Republican National committee, and William Butler, Republican National committeeman from Massachusetts. The trio discussed the presidential suite for thirty minutes. When he emerged, Adams refused to discuss his visit in any way. A few moments later, Senator Albert Cummins of Iowa, one of the late president's warmest friends, and Senator Charles Rawson, freshman mentioned as a possible successor to Adams, went into conference with the president. While Cummins announced he had spoken to the president on plans for the state funeral, it was believed matters of policy also were under discussion.

Following Adams' visit, rumors were current that the Republican chieftain would step down and out in the near future. The presence of Cummins was given many interpretations, most of which pointed to his selection as the next Republican committeeman. In the presence of Rawson Brough, the same conjectures were made. There was a growing impression around the temporary "White House" of impending changes in the cabinet. Rumors were bandied about that Butler would succeed Attorney General Daugherty, and that Secretary of State Hughes would resign, with the selection of Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts as his successor. On the whole, it was apparent, at least, that Massachusetts would be firmly entrenched in the new administration.

ABOARD THE HARDING FUNERAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The people of the great Mississippi Valley among whom Warren G. Harding in the full flush of vigorous life moved, a few weeks ago, returned that tribute a thousand fold today as his funeral train sped swiftly on its sorrowful eastward journey.

The reverent crowd of American people for their dead president received its most striking example at Omaha early this morning. The funeral train drew into the Northwestern Station more than an hour behind schedule. It was 3:15 o'clock yet more than 25,000 people stood at silent attention in and around the station when the long black train glided in. They had been there for hours.

Tribute of Silence

Inside the lines of soldiers had been drawn up tightly to keep the throng back from the right of way. Behind this line of military forces, a mass of silent bareheaded, reverent people stood. Thousands milled around in the semi-dark looking for vantage points from which they might see the funeral looking car and bare their heads in silent respect to its occupants.

Nowhere in this vast crowd of people was there the slightest evidence of disorder. The tightly drawn lines of military might as well have been dispensed with. There was evidence of but one desire—to show respect and reverence for the kindly, democratic man whose remains were carried in that grim looking train car, wrapped in the glorious colors of his country. The halt at Omaha was brief. The train was behind schedule and there was only time to take aboard in the already over-flowing baggage car the country's floral offerings that symbolized the grief of the city and state.

Funeral Bells Told

When the train moved slowly out of Omaha station, the giant throng began quietly to disperse. At Council Bluffs, across the river, the train passed through the city. There, too, was a throng congregated in silent reverence. But the train was late and it moved slowly without stopping through the city.

Boone, Iowa, turned out in mass in the early morning. There also were the same silent throngs augmented by large numbers of Knights Templar gathered from all over eastern and central Iowa. Knights of the Order, resplendent in dress of uniform, stood bowed beside the track as the train pulled in. The military guard was provided by Battery A. 185 Field Artillery. The beautiful strains of "Taps" the lullaby song for those who have fought the good fight, floated out on the morning air as the train drew out of Boone.

Silent Thousands

At Marshalltown and Cedar Rapids, there were other silent thousands congregated at the station and in the streets through which the train passed. The country roads were choked with many automobiles oftentimes, containing whole families. Workmen from the factories along the way stopped work and stood with hats in hand. West bound traffic over the Northwestern stopped as the funeral train approached.

In the towns, at the cross roads and miles and miles of waving grain fields that extended far as the eye could see on either side of the route thousands came to

PARIS OPERA IN NEED OF REPAIR

World's Most Famous Play House Needs $250,000 Spent on Repairs

PARIS, Aug. 6.—The Paris opera, largest and most luxurious theatre in the world and pride of all France, is in need of renovation. M. Patouillard, supervisor of the structure, is authority for the statement that a quarter of a million dollars' worth of repairs are required at once.

French weather has dealt unkindly with the gorgeous exterior ornaments and stone surface of the Opera. Within enormous crowds which gather every night for grand opera performances, costume balls and celebrations have badly damaged the furnishings.

Even the justly famous Grand Staircase, one of the "sights" of Paris, has lost its imposing appearance. The government's miserly allowance of $10,000 a year for upkeep doesn't provide enough caretakers to keep the marble surfaces cleaned and polished.

The fiftieth anniversary of the building of the Opera will be observed in December, 1924. Already, however, there is agitation to put the structure under the control of the historic monuments commission, in which case an admission would be charged to sightseers who wanted only to glimpse the Grand Staircase.

Charles Karnier was the architect who conceived and executed the imposing outlines of the Opera, which is situated almost exactly in the center of Paris, commanding the full extent of the broad, attractive Avenue de l'Opera.

EARLY MARRIAGE MORE PREVALENT

Nation's Young Men Wed at Earlier Period in Life, Scientist Claims

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 6.—"The young men of today who marry early in life are better able to take care of their wives than the young men of fifty years ago."

Prof. William A. Lewis, head of the department of sociology and economics at the Kansas City junior college, says so. And Professor Lewis, who has been interested in social welfare work for nearly fifty years, ought to know.

"And another thing—the age of marriage is actually decreasing instead of increasing, as some writers would have us believe," Professor Lewis said.

Premium paid for youth is the reason, he believes.

"The young man of today has a chance so much greater than the young man of yesterday that there can be no comparison. Young blood and young brains are wanted in every line of work the world over. Men are willing to pay for them and hence we have more independence, bigger bank accounts and earlier marriages for the youth of today," he said.

Lewis praised the teaching of home economics in the schools and the discussion of economic problems in general.

WORKS WAY OVER TO SECURE IDEAS

German Health Official in Rapid Conferences on Hygienic Topics

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The financial exigency under which public welfare undertakings labor due to present conditions in Germany has been strikingly shown in the unique course taken by a Bavarian government official to acquaint himself with American developments in public health work which he could apply to his own problems.

Dr. Gustav Seiffert, of Munich, general secretary of the National Health Council of Bavaria, turned up in New York recently without official heralding of his arrival, but with something of dramatic urgency in his venture. He had taken a job as ship's doctor on a German liner to America, and so managed to get in a few days' rapid fire conferences with health experts and heads of public health organizations in New York City while the vessel lay over for the return trip.

Dr. Seiffert was particularly eager to get in touch with workers for child health, and to take counsel as to health educational measures which would put to most effective use the extremely limited funds available for his department in the Bavarian government.

He intends to translate the suggestions he received in his flying trip to America into such ways and means of restoring health standards for German children as the meager funds and personnel at his disposal will permit. The need for such work in Germany at present, Dr. Seiffert said, is everywhere recognized as imperative.

Named 'Virginia' for Basketball Player

DEFIANCE, Ohio, Aug. 6. Sons in almost any town may named after the president of the United States, but to Defiance falls the distinction of possessing proud parents whose daughter was christened for three basketball players, all having the given name of Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Mau, ardent basketball fans, had named their baby Virginia, honoring Misses Virginia LaBertson, Virginia Harley and Virginia Lawson, all members of local high school basketball team.

FOREST FIRES SPREADING, IS REPORT

Hundreds of Fighters in Effort to Put Check on Spreading Flames

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—Hundreds of fire fighters were rushed today to the scene of rapidly spreading forest fires in the Sisquoc country near Santa Barbara and in the western part of the San Bernardino mountains, where flames were reported to be sweeping the country.

In the San Bernardino mountain fire more than 100 fire fighters were sent to the scene from nearby communities. After a stiff battle, they checked the advancing flames from the north fork of Lytel Creek, near Glen Ranch.

Fighters were rushed to the Sisquoc. The best the fire fighters can do is to protect the side lines which may burn itself out at the headwaters of the Sisquoc river, it is said.

The fire in Coyote Creek, Ojai, is reported to be burning again and to be assuming a more serious proportion than before.

Women More Prone to Remarry Than Men

DES MOINES, Aug. 6.—As a popular sport marriage is much more popular with women than with the male folks, according to records compiled by Leslie M. Deaton, jury clerk of the district court.

For the first half of July there were eighty marriages in this county, and of this number twenty-seven of the brides were getting their second husbands, while only seventeen of the grooms were trying marital bliss for the second time.

These figures are not unusual, Deaton declares. "Rather they show the women remarrying less than usual. They marry almost twice as much as the men."

President and Mrs. Harding, snapped just before he was stricken by death at San Francisco

This probably is the last photograph of President and Mrs. Harding taken before he was taken to his bed on his arrival in San Francisco. It is evident that the western trip was too great a strain on the president. The exertion of the tour is plainly shown by Harding's face.

GRIEF IS SHOWN AS TRAIN PASSES

Sorrow Stricken Thousands
Bow Heads as Special
Hastens to Capital

BOONE, Ia., Aug. 6.—Running thirty-five minutes behind its schedule, the train carrying the body of the twenty-ninth president of the United States left here at 7:15 this morning, after thousands of Iowans had paid their last respects during the ten-minute stop of the train.

Knights Templar of Western Iowa in full uniform exemplified the mourning for the dead. A similar service will be conducted at Clinton by the Knights Templar of Eastern Iowa. Taps were sounded by Battery A, 155 Field Artillery as the train slid out of the station. With colors draped and dipped the American Legion members stood in uniform at full attention as the train stopped.

Thousands Mourn

AMES, Iowa, Aug. 6.—The train carrying the body of Warren G. Harding passed through here at 7:38 a. m. today while thousands from Des Moines and other nearby cities stood with uncovered heads. The pilot train passed through here at 7:30 a. m.

Hundreds See Train

TAMA, Iowa, Aug. 6.—The Chicago & Northwestern special carrying the funeral party of Warren G. Harding passed through here at 8:51 a. m. today. Hundreds were at the little station as the train roared through on its race to make up lost time. The train was scheduled here at 8:23 a. m.

Takes on Wreaths

MARSHALSTOWN, Iowa, Aug. 6.—The Harding funeral train reached here at 8:22 a. m., stopped six minutes for water and to receive a floral offering from citizens, and resumed its eastward journey at 8:28 a. m. It was sixteen minutes behind schedule.

Passes Belle Plaine

BELLE PLAINE, Ia., Aug. 6.—The Harding funeral train passed through here at 9:12 a. m. today. It was then seventeen minutes late.

Twenty-Seven Minutes Late

SPRINGFIELD, Ia., Aug. 6.—Speeding along at a fast clip, the special funeral train of President Harding passed through this city at 9:28 a. m. today. The train was then twenty-seven minutes behind schedule.

to Columbia. Mr. Harding went to the presidency. Yesterday Dr. King came back to the church to preach a sermon. When he mounted the pulpit it was several seconds before he could trust himself to speak. Just a few feet in front of him there was an empty pew. Across the back was a draping of crepe. Some flowers were on the seat.

There is a plaque at the end of the Harding pew. On it is inscribed "Warren G. Harding, president of the United States of America, 1921-1923."

Time has written the date prematurely.

FARMERS HONOR DEATH CARAVAN

Stop Work in Fields as Harding Train Speeds
Towards Capital

day to stand uncovered and quietly respectful as the long black train rushed by with its heavy load of national grief.

Sometimes the train stopped, sometimes it scarcely slackened speed, but whether it halted or not, there was at every station and crossroads the same silent bare-headed reverential throng. Usually there was a color guard, the brightness of the flag dimmed by the unwonted streamers of black crepe. Even in the green cornfields, the farmers halted their work to stand at the fence and wave their hands and thus mutely express their sorrow at the untimely passing of him, who little more than a month ago discarded his silk hat and his presidential dignity that he might mingle democratically with them in the fields and learn at first hand their problems.

Nearing Home State

From Omaha this morning early, the funeral train swept into Iowa and settled down for a day's run which by nightfall will bring it within the borders of President Harding's home state of Ohio and less than twenty-four hours distant from the nation's capital.

A stop of fifteen minutes was made at Omaha in order to change engines and to move the train from the Union Pacific to the Northwestern Lines over which the run to Chicago will be made. Chicago will be reached shortly after three o'clock this afternoon and there the train will be switched around the outskirts of the city to the Baltimore and Ohio system for the final run to Washington.

Mrs. Harding is slowly and methodically gathering strength for the trying ordeal that awaits her in the capital and at Marion where the president's remains will be interred on Friday. No more difficult week ever confronted any woman. Realizing this, she is spending most of her time in bed obtaining as much sleep as possible against the time when she will stand sorely in need of her strength and nerve. She has convinced even the skeptical doctors, however, that she will be able to stand the rigors of the homecoming.

Shows Great Courage

Courageously and with that amazing strength of will which continues to evoke the admiration of those about her, Mrs. Harding has gathered herself together and has even given some thought to the future. While she has not made any definite plans and will not until after this trying week is over, it is understood that she will not make her home in Washington. In this respect she will, her friends say, follow the example set by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, leaving the capital when she visits Washington, from time to time, it will not be as the widow of a president, but as any other private visitor.

Announcement from Marion that Mrs. Harding will make her home for the immediate future with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Sawyer at their place on the outskirts of Marion, is regarded by her friends aboard the train as premature. She probably will return to Marion after the sorrowful days of moving from the White House are completed, and then she will probably reside with the Sawyers or at the home of her brother in Marion. Ultimately, she has told friends, she would like to travel a bit abroad, if her health permits.

Thus far, the trip from the West coast has been an epochal one for speed and smoothness of travel. The train passed over nearly 2000 miles of desert, mountain and plain.

Runs Away From Storm

Throughout the night the train ran steadily away from a severe thunder and electrical storm which constantly was on its heels. The train only escaped from the rain and lightning when it crossed the Missouri river early this morning and struck out through the Iowa grain belt. Officials aboard the train received assurances from Washington today that Mrs. Harding's desire for the capital ceremonies to follow the precedents established in the rites for President McKinley will be carried out to the letter.

There is a remarkable similarity in the careers and lives of these two Ohio presidents which is frequently commented upon by those aboard the funeral train. Each had served his term in Columbus and Congress before going to the White House. Each was known for his sane conservatism and kindly qualities during his term of office. Even in their domestic lives the parallel extends. Mrs. McKinley's health was, after a severe illness, very precarious, and her husband was ever solicitous of her physical well-being, even as President Harding was so tenderly watchful of Mrs. Harding ever since her severe illness, and yet, despite her illness, Mrs. McKinley survived her husband, even as now, despite her illness, Mrs. Harding has survived him who was looked upon but a month ago as a picture of health and vigor.

ATHLETICS HALT WINNING STREAK

Santa Rita Drops Game to Glendale in Stirling
Pitchers' Duel

Before a large crowd of loyal boosters the Glendale Athletic club yesterday put a stop to the Santa Rita club's winning streak, at the home grounds, after the latter club had piled up eight straight victories, by a score of 5 to 3. Slim Harris, the Glendale twirler, had perfect control, and with his curves breaking nicely he held the Santa Ritas to three runs, besides bringing two runners in himself in the third, when he slammed out a fast one to right. Harris and Hernandez, the visiting pitcher, staged a sensational duel, with the local boy having the edge.

An impressive incident was enacted in the fourth inning when the players and spectators stood uncovered and at attention, when City Manager W. H. Reeves asked that this tribute be paid to the memory of the late President Harding.

TAGGING ALL BASES

McQuillan produced further evidence to support that the Giants have pitchers, by shutting out the Cincinnati Reds, 2 to 0.

There were two out in the fatal ninth when Goslin stepped to the plate and drove in the winning run with a single, the Senators winning, 6 to 5.

G. Herman Ruth, the outfielder, cuffed two homers out of the premises while the Yanks were beating the Browns, 9 to 8, in thirteen innings. Meusel produced the winning run with a single off Van Gilder.

THEATRES

"The Heart of Wetona," latest of the Norma Talmadge revivals, now at the Glendale Theatre, shows this talented star in one of the best roles she ever undertook.

Supported by Thomas Meighan and a notable cast including Gladden James, Miss Talmadge in "The Heart of Wetona" has created a classic. The story, from the pen of George Scarborough, was originally written as a starring vehicle for Lenore Ulric, produced by David Belasco. It is a story of a half Indian girl, who has been wronged by the man she loves. She refuses to tell the name of her lover and an innocent man is accused. To protect Wetona, this man, who is secretly in love with her, marries her. She is ousted from the tribe, but learning that she loves her husband and not her betrayer, gains her father's forgiveness and is made happy.

THE GATEWAY
"Alice Adams," adapted from Booth Tarkington's prize-winning novel of that name, is the feature at the Gateway Theatre tonight. The name of this famous American author is sufficient to ensure a splendid story, but with Florence Vidor in the part of Alice, the result is double certain to please. "Alice Adams" is a homely story of every-day folks. It will make a deep impression because of the sincere way it is handled by King Vidor, Florence Vidor's husband, who directed the feature. The story is of a girl at once so foolish and so brave as to attempt the great American game of bluff, in order to make her friends believe she is in better circumstances than she really is. This throws her whole family into a discord, as so frequently happens in real life. The picture is dramatically realistic.

BOYS WILL HOLD AIR TOURNAMENT

Embryo Aviators Will Learn Mechanical Details of Flying Machines

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Aviation and its myriad mechanical intricacies will be explained and discussed for the benefit of several hundred sturdy lads of Chicago in an airplane tournament to be held here August 18 and 19. The project, which has received wide publicity for the past several weeks, already has engrossed the attention of a host of youngsters of an inventive turn of mind.

For weeks Chicago boys have been poring over blue prints and attempting to create the design called for. The promoters of the tournament said the boys thus have been taught the value of being accurate and careful with their measurements, as the slightest variation invariably leads to a ruined product.

All of the young entrants in the tournament are expected to make a venture into the science of aeronautics. This will afford them an opportunity to learn of the lifting power of the air, the force of air currents, the necessary size of the wings and the propeller, the problems of momentum and of speed, and the balancing of the plane in relation to all these factors.

The amateur air event, in the opinion of Terrence Vincent, one of its most enthusiastic sponsors, will be a rare educational treat for Chicago's boys and, at the same time, the youngsters will reap much joy from their efforts.

Almost fifty toy planes have been completed since the tournament was first announced and have been placed on exhibition, Vincent said.

LA CRESCENTA

FIREMEN BATTLE BIG BRUSH FIRE

Menace to Homes Averted By Volunteers From Nearby Cities

A brush fire of unknown origin broke out on the Luntzel Mayfield avenue tract about 2 p. m. yesterday.

With a steady wind blowing the fire fighters had a strenuous time combating the flames. Heading toward Michigan boulevard, the fire endangered several homes, but fortunately for the owners the volunteer firemen succeeded in quelling the fire's advance, getting it entirely under control in about two hours.

At the first sign of fire, men rushed to the scene with hoses and shovels, coming from Tujunga and all over the valley.

Mrs. Louise Erwin entertained Mr. and Mrs. Don Hutchinson, bride and groom of Fresno, on Friday night. The visit was in the nature of a surprise and a home supper was served the guests before their departure.

Miss Marion Kiehl entertained a number of her young friends at a small dancing party. Delicious refreshments were served during the evening and games enjoyed by the guests. Those present were: Miss Jessie and Sara Conlin, Janet Culbertson, Francis Foy, Schofield, Kappel, Waltz Young, Robert Kelso, Bob and Tex Hendrix, Claxton Young and Herbert Ingal.

Back from Canada

Carroll Foy has just returned from his Canadian trip where he visited in Vancouver and other British Columbia cities. He enjoyed the sincere hospitality with which he was entertained by our Canadian cousins.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Farmin of Hollywood purchased the home of LeRoy Johnson on Piedmont and Pleasure way, the sale being made by Mrs. Erwin of Michigan boulevard. Mr. and Mrs. S. Farmin moved into the new home the day after making the purchase.

Uses Paint Spray

Thomas Brown used his new electric paint spray for the first time on the interior of the Lowe building. With this spray the paint can be spread in a very short time and is a great saver in this respect.

Mr. Brown and family formerly resided in Glendale, but purchased two acres for his home site on West Montrose avenue, where he has just completed a swimming pool and tennis court for the family who reside in a commodious stucco house after the Spanish type.

OUTDO MAGICIAN IN LIQUOR HUNT

Policeman Finds Whisky in Lamp Socket in Raid On Restaurant

CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 6.—To revise an old version:

"Aladdin rubbed his magic lamp and made a dream come true. A Canton woman cleaned a lamp and filled it up with brew."

Aladdin rubbed his lamp again—his magic couldn't fail. But a Canton cop turned on the lamp and the woman went to jail.

—Police Squeal Book, Page 13.

Daniel Van Gunton is a patrolman extraordinary. Like most cops, he never had much luck. He just went around looking for things he never found, but one night recently he out-Aladdined Aladdin, and with the lamp of someone else, too.

Van Gunton ambled into a bowling alley and restaurant conducted by Eva Pope, looking for booze. He searched industriously, but fruitfully.

Finally he wandered into the kitchen and sniggered suddenly.

"That's a funny place for that light to be," he said as he surveyed a large gas light which hung from the ceiling close to the wall. His curiosity and booze-hunting instincts led him to a further investigation.

He pulled the chain on the light.

No illumination followed. Instead a little stream of liquid trickled from the bottom of the lamp. Van Gunton smelled it.

"Now I know why they say people get lighted up," remarked the officer as he unscrewed the lamp from the ceiling.

Inside the lamp was a copper cylinder containing three pints of illicit whisky.

Mrs. Pope was arrested and charged with violating the prohibition law.

TAKES FOURTH CHANCE

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 6.—Mrs. Lizzie Ricketts, aged 50, who is the mother of 21 children, was married for the fourth time recently. Mrs. Ricketts' last husband is Charles Henry, of Scranton. Her first two husbands died and she divorced the third one.

GRANT FRANCHISE TO BUS COMPANY

Will Connect With Pasadena Line; Service to Begin On September 1st

Announcement has been made that a franchise has been granted the Verdugo Hills Transportation company by the state railway commission to operate a bus to connect with the Pasadena line, eliminating the walk from La Crescenta to Flintridge. The company expects to have this service in operation by the first of September.

The water pressure test, held on the property of the California Home Extension company, brought out the fact that sufficient force is maintained by the water company's gravity system to throw water over a two-story building in quantities sufficient to control a bad fire. With the main already laid along Sunset avenue and the rest of the business section, fire protection for this district is a simple matter of installing hydrants and hose.

Hold Swimming Party

The T. N. T. club had an evening swimming party at the Garden of the Moon pool recently. During the evening a lunch was served and the members present enjoyed basking in the sun on the stone ovens on the grounds. Those attending were: Don Wieman, Al Johnson, Jack Johnson, Bob Rutherford, Mr. Oliver, Howard Anawalt and Howard Rich.

H. H. Coke of Walnut drive has gone to his ranch near Tulare for a short vacation.

Mrs. Carl Showers and C. H. Barlow of Los Angeles and Mrs. Fellows of Pasadena were entertained recently by Dr. Croake at her Rocky Dell mountain home.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Richardson have returned from an automobile trip, having visited Bishop, Rock Creek, Mammoth and other points in the Bishop section.

Mrs. A. C. Stover, wife of the proprietor of the Tujunga Drug store, is enjoying a visit with her mother, who came up from her home in San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Mills of 216 E. Main street, Visalia, recently had as their guest Mrs. Etta Beals of Los Angeles, who has purchased property in Tujunga and plans to build on it.

Will Bring Family

H. F. Stover has taken the Williams place on Greeley street, and will establish his family there. He will have charge of the refreshment concession operated by his brother, Dr. C. Stover, at the Garden of the Moon dance pavilion.

Chester J. Ware has taken the house at 204 North Monte Vista and he and his family will make their home there.

Miss Edith James, assistant to Mr. Smedley in the Edison Electric office, is visiting friends in the north.

CONCESSIONS AT PICNIC PLANNED

Police Arrangements for Big Event Are Worked Out By Officials

Plans for the annual picnic of the Glendale Merchants' Association, that is to be held on Wednesday, August 15, have progressed to a point where the committee in charge of the event is preparing to arrange for the concessions that are to be allowed in the Haddock-Nibley Verdugo park on the day of the picnic, and the details of these concessions will be settled by the officials within the next few days.

Arrangements have been made with Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of police, to have the park thoroughly policed during the day, and all arrangements for parking automobiles are now being worked out and will be handled by a detail of local officers.

The response to the association's request, backed by the proclamation of Mayor Spencer Robinson, that the local places of business close on the day of the picnic, has been most encouraging, and it is predicted that the attendance at the picnic will set a record.

W. S. Kirk and Wife Return From Trip

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kirk, of 1131 East Colorado street, and Mrs. and Mrs. C. W. Smith, of 856 1/2 Virgil street, Los Angeles have returned from a three weeks' motor trip through the Sequoia National park.

Mr. Kirk comments on the hundreds of varieties of beautiful flowers, and on the abundance of animal life. "Wild as a buck," he says, "the bucks are exceedingly tame. Mrs. Kirk succeeded in feeding an apple to a five-pointed one."

No firearms, dogs, cats or parrots are allowed in the park, says Mr. Kirk, although why this discrimination against the latter should exist is a problem he cannot solve.

There were a number of Glendale people in the park, he reports.

Life is wasted when you gamble with your time; Sin is fostered as your chances downward climb.

ELKS WILL STAGE BIG FIGHT CARD

Five Bouts on Tap Thursday For Benefit of Band Convention Fund

The third big boxing card to be presented by the Elks lodge in aid of the plan to raise funds to send the Glendale Elks band to attend the annual convocation of the order at Eureka next month is announced by Ray L. Galvin, chairman of the Elks committee, who has booked an array of talent for Thursday, August 9, that will, he promises, put every other such entertainment away back in the shade. Galvin has had the assistance of Harry E. McCartney in booking Thursday night's program.

Frankie Novey and Ted Levin, who recently fought a headline bout at Vernon, have been matched for the Elks benefit, and they are expected to repeat their slashing battle of a month ago, when they stirred the fans to a state of inarticulate enthusiasm every minute they were in the ring. These boys battle at 116 pounds.

Lightweights Booked

Joe Layman, who fought here in one of the Elks shows, has been matched with Louis Garcia at 135 pounds, and this is another bout that should be worth the price of admission. Two more lightweights, Joe Gomez and Frankie Conroy, are also expected to furnish a lot of action while they are in there, both being fast, rugged battlers who work all the time they are in the ring.

Another star bout will see Paul Wilkins and Eddie Herman, 125-pounders, who recently fought a soul-stirring fight in the Vernon ring, meeting here for the delectation of the Elks, and here, again, the fans are promised a real treat, as these boys are rated as being among the best of their weight to be found in the four-round game.

Two Clever Boys

As a finisher, Young Farrell, rated the most scientific and quickest boy of his weight, 122 pounds, will tangle with Sammy Berger, who is admittedly no slouch himself, and those who admire the clever stuff will have an opportunity to see four rounds of work by these two flashy boys, both of whom can hit.

Dan Tobey the internationally known announcer, who calls 'em off at the Olympics and Vernon and Hollywood, will introduce the boys, and Harry McCartney will be the third man in the ring.

Reserved seats will be really reserved this time, Galvin declares, and any member who buys a reserved seat ticket will get the seat he pays for. The first pair of scrappers will be sent into the ring at 8:30 p. m. sharp.

Special W. C. T. U. Day Scheduled Wednesday

Mrs. Ruby J. Smart of 110 Olive street, president of the Glendale W. C. T. U., and a group of members are planning to go to Santa Monica Wednesday, August 8, for the special W. C. T. U. day at the Pacific Palisades Chautauqua.

It will be a free day at the Chautauqua and all W. C. T. U. members and friends are cordially invited to spend that day at the beach. There will be a special program of meetings and demonstrations ending with the drama of Ruth and Naomi presented at night by Princes Rhame Haider and Miss H. Lucile Burges.

Those desiring to go can either go by the Pasadena-Santa Monica bus or go to Los Angeles, take the Santa Monica car at Fourth and Hill streets, get off at Utah street, Santa Monica and there take the bus directly to the Palisades.

Alcoholic Insanity Reported Decreasing

LIMA, Ohio, Aug. 6.—A notable decrease in insanity followed the coming of prohibition, according to figures and statistics compiled by Dr. Charles H. Clark, superintendent of the Lima State Hospital. The figures show that the greatest decrease came in insanity caused by alcohol. An increase during the years 1916-1920, according to Dr. Clark, occurred among young men who had seen service overseas and had been either shellshocked or subjected to other war hardships.

City Helps Celebrate Veterans' Birthday

WABASH, Ind., Aug. 6.—"Uncle Jack" Higgins effectually halted the procession, as the Englishman once said when he intended to convey that he "stopped the parade," when he celebrated his 105th birthday here.

The entire city of Wabash halted its activities for the moment and paid tribute to Higgins. A huge birthday party was held in the city park, and was attended by many hundreds of persons. Gifts were showered upon Higgins.

"Uncle Jack" as he is known to young and old in the city, is believed to be Indiana's oldest resident. He was born in England, served a number of years in the British navy, then came to America to live. Although he was then already past the prime of life, he fought with the union forces dur-

Perfume Fails to Improve Pole Cat

COLUMBUS, Ind., Aug. 6.—Nature, which triumphed when an attempt was made to paint the billy, won again when Jack Throckmorton attempted to perfume a baby polecat. Throckmorton found the animal on a road near this city and brought it home for a pet. It was feared that the kitten's home life had not always been most pleasant, so it was given a bath in toilet water and named "Honeysuckle." Sermon Excerpts And News Notes From Local Churches

CHURCHES of Glendale held solemn, impressive services yesterday, attended by large crowds. Pastors preached on varied topics and special music was provided by soloists and choirs. Herewith are presented brief excerpts from sermons and, too, other church news:

PROPHET'S THREE VISIONS ARE TOLD

Rev. Edmonds Explains Spirit Revealed to Ezekiel In Sunday Sermon

At the Presbyterian church on Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, preached upon the work of the Holy Spirit, taking a text from Ezekiel 1:20, "The Spirit of the Living Creature (Life) Was in the Wheels." An outline follows:

"The prophet Ezekiel's ministry with exiles of his people far from Jerusalem, was dramatic and pathetic. God showed him by a vision the tragic history at home; and he understood that all that was happening was but the framework of God's plan. There visions he was given, all centering about the work of the Holy Spirit.

Four Great Creatures

"In this first vision Ezekiel beheld a whirlwind of fire, in its midst the four marvelous living creatures, cherubim. One such had been placed to guard Eden, behind Adam. Ages later, golden figures of two such were made upon the mercy seat, God's place in the holy of holies; and they reappear in the Revelation, symbols of the Lord Christ in His mighty workings; the four faces of a lion, ox, eagle, man, represent God's sovereignty, power, omniscience and love, which guide His whole government. Ezekiel saw these four in that wondrous glory, and they were equipped with four marvelous mighty wheels whereby they moved with lightning rapidity, and there was life in the wheels. Here was life!

"Such was the vision with which Ezekiel's call came. Shortly he was given a duty, a message for his people, and his spirit was, 'Here am I,' and he went forth to his life work in the power of the Holy Spirit. Such glory may not be shown to us, but yet it remains to abide in the Christian's life. All depends on how much you yield to Him.

Glory Leaves Temple

"Ezekiel's second vision was of the glory of God departing from the temple in Jerusalem, the cherubim went away. God's pleading with his people had been in vain. The reason a life is empty and weak is because the Spirit is grieved by all the wrong.

"The third vision was of the return of the departed glory. Oh, the return! 'Then will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean.' There are three very distinct stages in the promised blessing—the making clean, the indwelling of the Holy Ghost, the victorious living by the Spirit, which is the fruitage, the normal position of the believer, God on the throne."

Christ Refused Crown Of Temporal Kingdom

"Christ, a King" was the theme of Rev. Henry O. Kringling yesterday morning at the Concordia Lutheran church.

"We are told that the people intended to take Jesus by force and make Him a king," he commented. "The time seemed to be favorable. The Passover was that night. From all parts of Judea and from other parts of the world the Jews were flocking to Jerusalem to celebrate the great annual feast which, according to their law, they were required to celebrate in their magnificent temple at the capital city.

"Thousands among the common people believed that Jesus was the great prophet of whom Moses had spoken, saying: 'The Lord will raise up a prophet unto thee like unto me. Unto Him shall ye hearken.' And now they wanted to make Him their king.

"But Christ secreted Himself. We are told, 'He departed again into a mountain Himself alone.' And Christ is the same Savior today although most people expect of Him something different."

Prayer Strengthens Faith, Says Winnard

Dr. James F. Winnard has returned to the pastorate of the Tropico Presbyterian church after a month's vacation, and at the service yesterday morning spoke on "The Faith of Our Fathers."

"We think, if we could only do some big thing, we would show our faith," he said, "but we do not remember that he who is faithful in that which is least, will be faithful also in much.

"Prayer is one of the greatest faith strengtheners. So also will be found help in the exercise of the faith we have. Pray the prayer of the disciples: 'Lord, increase our strength,' but do not expect that increase to come until you have done the utmost with the faith you have.

"The faith of Polycarp, of Ignatius and of others of the Christian martyrs, stood for all forms of persecution and burning at the stake, drowning in most horrible forms. But our faith hardly will get us up in time to attend the morning worship or give us time for family prayers."

Tribute to Harding At Methodist Church

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. L. J. Millikan, preaching service was conducted by Rev. Edwin Hoskyn. Professor Whitteker sang, by request, "The Old Rugged Cross." Mrs. Gail R. Truman presided at the piano. Before the sermon the speaker paid a beautiful and loving tribute to the life of the late President. In deference to his memory the choir and congregation sang "Lead, Kindly Light," this being Mr. Harding's favorite hymn.

Mr. Hoskyn selected for his sermon topic Joshua 1:3, "Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you." The speaker explained the cause for the children of Israel being required to roam the desert for forty years, and consequently their delay in entering the promised land. Their crossing the river Jordan and taking possession of the promised land was conditioned upon certain requirements, and not until they had met these requirements did God permit them to leave the barren waste. Deliverance comes as soon as we are ready, but never before. Lack of obedience, knowledge, and submission to God's will were the chief causes that prevented their deliverance. On the day those rebellious people repented, that day God led them into the coveted promised land.

Once established in Canaan all went well with them so long as they obeyed God, and the fact that they forsook Him and worshipped Baal, was nothing short of a tragedy. For their sins they paid the penalty;—this we all do.

Pastor Reads Poems At Church Services

Rev. B. C. Cory delivered the sermon at the Sunday morning service at Casa Verdugo Methodist Episcopal church. "The love of God is spread as broad as a river, flowing everywhere," said the speaker, who based his sermon on the beautiful passages of the Twenty-third Psalm.

Robert D. Jones sang a baritone solo, "The Christian Life," by John B. Dykes.

At the evening service, Rev. Cory read the Beatitudes, for the Scripture lesson, and, in lieu of a sermon, devoted a half hour to the reading of a number of poems, which have appeared in many leading magazines. One was written to the mission, "San Luis Del Rey." Another had been written and published at the time of the death of President Garfield. The closing one, "Gethsemane," was especially beautiful.

Rev. Cory closed the service by singing a baritone solo, "Face to Face," a song he will sing today at the funeral service of former Mayor George Alexander, in Los Angeles. He was a warm personal friend of the family, and his solo is to be the only music at the service.

Prayerful Life of Harding Is Praised

"The prayerful life and Christian attitude of late President Warren G. Harding was discussed briefly yesterday morning in the council chamber of the city hall by Councilman W. A. Horn of 221 North Louise street, president of the Men's Brotherhood Class of the Presbyterian church.

"This country is very fortunate," remarked Mr. Horn, "that President Calvin R. Coolidge is a prayerful man, also, who believes that the strength and safety of these United States depends upon our prayers and Christian fellowship.

"Falling from Grace" was the subject of the address by Rev. Keith L. Brooks of Eagle Rock. He called attention to the fact that a wrong step in the founding of the church would have sacrificed all Christian liberty but a Jewish sect.

"The proud heart of man does not like the idea that he cannot do anything toward saving himself but that, according to God's plan, he must be saved by divine grace alone. Many have an idea that professing Christians, who fail in their works, are 'fallen from grace.' The Scriptural definition of this phrase, however, is exactly the opposite for Paul says that Christ is become of no effect unto those who are seeking to be justified by the works of the law for they are 'fallen from grace.'"

Urges Church Going Before Funeral Day

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 4.—A huge billboard, placed near St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church here, bore the legend: "A hearse is a poor vehicle in which to go to church. Better go while you are alive." Rev. Roy M. Terry, rector, had his name placed under the inscription.

The worst book ever written probably required the author's best efforts.

PASTOR'S EULOGY OVER PRESIDENT

Rev. Calderwood in Stirring Sermon Praises Work of Late Executive

"The Passing President" was the sermon theme Sunday morning of Rev. C. M. Calderwood of the Congregational church, and his eulogy of the late Warren G. Harding was most heartfelt, for they were associated together by the bond of brotherhood in the Knights Templar.

Rev. Calderwood took for his sermon text, "Moses my servant, is dead; now therefore arise and go over this Jordan" from Joshua 1:2.

He said, "Moses, my servant, is dead." This is a plain statement, and to us it seems inadequate to the situation. Had God nothing more to say to the man who had served the interests of his kingdom with such amazing fidelity and devotion? The divine taskmaster is not indifferent to the toil and tears through which his servants achieve success.

Last "Well Done"

"The national hero and leader is dead. The program has been planned, the road has been cleared, the task lies ahead, the promised land is in sight. God's obituary notices are brief, but this is not an evidence that God is heartless. He is not. The wreaths upon the grave will wither but the kindness with which the living soul is garlanded will never die.

"God does not wait till the toil is done and then strain his vocabulary to find some new word of praise. His last 'well done' is simply the summing up of a long series of encouragements to a national leader who has long striven to recognize the authority of the Almighty.

"God says, 'my servant.' He is not yours, but mine. The nation's proprietorship was secondary. He came from God and has gone to God. He is my servant, for my hands made him, my fingers fashioned him, my spirit was breathed into him and he belongs to my household.

"No death can put a period in the divine purposes, which are supreme. The march must not be arrested because of a fallen leader. 'Arise, and go over this Jordan.' The leader is fallen. Who is there to stand in the gap? We speak as though God were weary. Nothing can take the Eternal unaware. God always supplies a strong Joshua to take the leader's place.

God Sends Leader

"God supplies the leadership. Are we ready to arise and go forward? Grief has its place. Sorrow is sent to sanctify and not to enervate our powers.

"We honor the dead much more effectively by committing ourselves both body and soul to the cause in which they lived and died, than by merely lamenting their death. 'Now therefore arise' is not an imperative command but an invigorating tonic.

"God said, 'Go' and he went before them. He had been with Moses and he would be with them. 'The Lord of hosts is with us, the God of Jacob is our refuge.'"

Students Tell About Conversion at Church

Sunday services at the Nazarene church yesterday drew a large attendance.

Rev. Henry Scheideman, the pastor, preached in the afternoon and at night the service was in charge of two young men from the Pasadena university. They gave the story of their lives, telling how God had saved them from a life of sin and shame. The congregation listened for over an hour to their story.

The regular monthly business meeting of the church will be held this evening, commencing at 7:30 o'clock.

Luncheon Dance Is Latest Paris Vogue

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Luncheon dancing is Paris' latest innovation, provided by a restaurant recently opened near the Rue de la Paix, world's famous center.

Police permission had to be obtained before the new idea could be tried. Now a jazz band functions from noon until 3 o'clock every day.

Midnettes, little seamstresses from the Rue de la Paix style shops, spend their two-hour luncheon time there.

BREAK LIGHT GLOBES

Detective Sergeant J. H. Simons yesterday observed that seven electric light globes on Canada boulevard, which had just been replaced by the public service department, were broken. He reports that these lights are broken almost as fast as they can be screwed into the sockets.

WRIST SLAP FATAL

WABASH, Ind., Aug. 6.—William Allen struck his wife on the wrist. The blow did not arouse her to reprisal, but he wished it had been her head instead of her wrist when she filed suit for divorce.

Special Time Saving Notice

To you with little or no time to spare, please read paragraphs 1, 4 and 7. They have an important message for you. We wish, however, to go to these points in a little more detail.

To You Thinking People who Have An Interest in the Growth of Glendale

A new outpost will be established in the Progress March of Both the Commercial and Civic Life of Glendale

The doors of the new Federal Commercial and Savings Bank of Glendale, located at the southeast corner of Wilson Street and Brand Boulevard, will be open on August 11th at 9 a. m., and will remain open that day until 9 p. m. The opening of this bank will be a striking point from which many lesser occurrences will be dated.

The opening of this strictly home-owned and home-operated State Bank is an extraordinary occasion. There is nothing about it that is either ordinary or usual. It is an event of tremendous importance to the public, for it means that your State Government has sent representatives here to examine this district and determine whether or not it needs the impulse which another strong and well-managed bank could give it, and the issuing of our charter is evidence that such a need is here.

With this in mind it is not unreasonable to believe that the opening of the Federal Commercial and Savings Bank is so influential a factor in the development of this locality that it has the importance of being an epoch making event in this city's history.

We fully appreciate the historical significance of the opening day of any bank and, knowing that you have the progressive mind that grasps the uniqueness and advantages of such an occasion, and believing that you realize the importance which the opening of a strictly home-owned and home-operated bank with completely equipped commercial, savings, safety deposit and escrow departments, has, we have provided a handsome souvenir in the nature of a silver Artpoint pencil which will be presented to every "First Day Depositor," either checking or savings, no matter what size the deposit may be.

This souvenir is a costly and substantial affair, designed especially for this occasion, and possessed of practical usefulness. The First Depositor at the Bank doors next Saturday morning, will receive a beautiful gold pencil—one for the first lady and one for the first gentleman—and all other depositors will be presented with silver ones of the same design and quality.

This is an unusual souvenir and one which both now and in after years anyone will be proud to own. Being unbranded with advertising it can be a useful token to you of the time when you took part in the furtherance of the commercial and financial facilities of this fast growing city and section by helping to establish a strictly home-owned and home-operated State Bank within its borders.

A Word to Savings Depositors

To all who open accounts with us on our opening day we will allow interest to begin as of July 1. What is more, we will attend to the transfer of any savings account located in any part of the United States without charge or bother or loss of interest to its owner.

Embraces Support of Community Enterprises

Pride in our own is a perfectly natural human emotion. It's a poor sort of fellow who has no pride in himself, his family, his home, his town or his country. An outstanding reason for Glendale's growth from a village to a city of consequence is the pride of her citizens in her. This, years ago, had reference to her beautiful location and the splendid advantages with which nature endowed her. But now the pride of Glendalians is invested in something more than beautiful scenery.

Glendale has grown to be a real city, one of the influential cities of California, standing in the list of those municipalities that are forging ahead.

A city's standing and importance are usually judged by its commercial activity. There must be trading or buying and selling wherever human beings congregate and the further people are advanced in the niceties of living the better organized and more complicated their commercial life.

The development of the commercial side of Glendale has advanced rapidly in the past three or four years and the pride of Glendalians in their city now extends to her rapidly growing skyline, her extraordinarily attractive business section, her fine stores and offices and her wide-awake business and professional men.

But the real test of our pride in our own Glendale is our loyalty to our community and to all those things that help in community building.

Our business men must have the support of the home people if our fine business center is to be maintained and grow with our population.

The men and women represented on this page have a natural pride in the callings in which they are engaged. They want to grow commercially and they want Glendale to grow. Their growth will help Glendale, Glendale's growth will benefit them. Your community pride will lead you to support these home enterprises.

DRIVER BLAMES CRASH ON SLEEP

Dozing at Wheel When Auto Hits Ornamental Lamp Standard, Belief

Slumber is believed responsible for a collision late Saturday night in which E. E. Franklin of 734 West Doran street escaped injury. He was driving toward home on San Fernando road and is alleged to have dozed for a moment or two. He was aroused when the front end of his machine hit a lamp post near the intersection of Park avenue.

The ornamental light standard and two globes were broken. The automobile was hauled to the Pellegrini Brothers' garage at 1321 South San Fernando road where both front wheels broken. The collision was reported at 2:40 a. m. by Officer James Claxton of the police department.

Mrs. M. Whiting of Duchesne, Utah, was taken to the Glendale Research Hospital with cuts about her face about 5:40 Saturday afternoon, following an automobile accident. She was a passenger in an automobile driven north on San Fernando road by Arnold Bertelsen of Duchesne, Utah. As his machine was making a left turn into Cerritos avenue, it collided with an automobile driven south on San Fernando road by W. C. Leopold of Los Angeles.

Land Patent Is Filed 54 Years After Issue

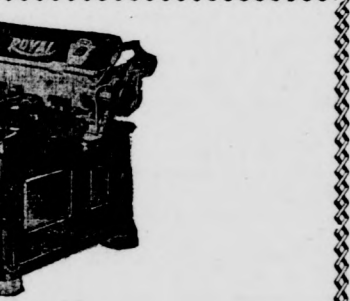

COLUSA, Aug. 6.—A United States patent bearing the date of 1868 was recorded by County Clerk T. D. Conin this week, covering homestead acreage in the vicinity of Ladaga. The patent was issued to J. W. Lovelady at that year, but now stands in the name of W. J. and T. J. Lovelady, sons of the original settler.

No reason was given for holding the document in the family for the past fifty-four years. The instrument is in a perfect state of preservation.

Damage to Vineyards Slight, Says Report

LODI, Aug. 6.—Damage done by excessive sulphuring of vineyards and by sunburn in this section will not amount to more than 5 per cent, according to D. H. DeVinney, manager of the Producers Fruit Company.

He said that the damage seemed to be greater on the damp and heavy soils, while many of the sandy land vineyards were not injured to any appreciable extent.

HAPPINESS NEED OF EX-SOLDIERS

Cheer and Home Comfort Are Factors in Aiding Vets to Regain Health

By BURL RAY TUTTLE
What future has the tubercular ex-serviceman? Will he find employment? Can he stand employment?

These are some of the questions confronting the Veterans' bureau and the tubercular veteran today. The "stigma" of having spent a few months, or years, in a tubercular sanatorium will follow the victim through life.

Even if the victim of the dread disease has the will power to carry out the essential rules of conduct—regard every regulation of the sanatorium—there is no such thing as becoming completely cured.

Every business man knows these facts and, unless through sympathy or personal friendship, will not give employment to a tubercular—even a tubercular disabled soldier.

Misses Happiness
The victim of the dread disease shrinks marriage in most cases; he is deprived of the happiness of home surroundings, home cooking and many other comforts of life enjoyed by the healthy.

There are instances where the veteran went overseas in 1917, contracted tuberculosis, and, from that time to the present, has been confined in various hospitals, denied all these years the loving home surroundings and even close contact with his relatives, being hospitalized hundreds of miles from his nearest relative.

Contented minds are home-keeping hearts, and they are the happiest.

There are not in one's home the ill effects of auto-suggestion or the subconscious mind, an inevitable and unavoidable condition in the association and environments of a sanatorium filled with victims of this dread disease—there is no escape from the continual conversation of the one subject which should be forgotten, your illness—while at home the disagreeable subject is never discussed. So, after all, what is to be the future of these veterans, who are compelled to remain in these hospitals? And will they ever be thusly treated by the same people who, only five short years ago, honored them as their defenders, praised as their heroes, lauded them as saviors of the world for democracy?

Somebody Cares
If they have to stay confined in these sanatoriums, it is up to these same people to fulfill their promises and create as much as they can the home surroundings that are denied these veterans. Keep their minds contented, let them keep them smiling by letting them know "SOMEBODY CARES."

At Sawtelle, seventeen miles from Los Angeles, several hundreds of these tubercular veterans have a little community of their own, where they are staging a comeback against the dread disease.

On the highest point of the soldiers' home there stands an imposing structure where, within its walls, minus home surroundings, these veterans are trying to keep up and have contented minds.

Some are bedridden, where entertainment must be brought to their beds, and others are still others who are in wheel chairs, and the best enjoyment they can get out of life is an auto ride, when cars are available.

These veterans have a recreation hall where almost any kind of entertainment can be staged for their benefit. This recreation hall contains a stage and piano. All that is missing is the entertainment.

Books, magazines, picnics, auto rides, a little song and dance, all help to make life worth living for these veterans.

Think it over. Are these veterans going to have contented minds? Are they going to be able to write home to their mothers and fathers, hundreds of miles away and say: "California is keeping her promise of five years ago, when they said: 'We're behind you, boys.' ARE YOU?"

District Attorney Defies Recall Move

PLACERVILLE, Aug. 6.—District Attorney Abe Darlington, replying to a recall movement launched against him, has issued a statement branding the movement as "organized resistance to enforcement of the law."

Success of the recall, says Darlington, would mean the end of law enforcement in El Dorado County.

Darlington is charged with extravagance and neglect of duty.

U. S. EXPERT ON VISIT TO SOUTH

Donald B. Dow and Wife on Tour; Leave Soon for Valley Oil Fields

Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Dow, of Oklahoma, who have been the guests of relatives in Los Angeles and Glendale for the past three weeks were the completed guests at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Blackburn of Los Angeles Saturday night.

Mr. Dow, who is a chemical engineer in the U. S. Bureau of Mines, is a grandson of the late Rev. W. S. Blackburn, who resided on Cedar street and died for fifteen years previous to his death four years ago, and has been a Glendale visitor before. He is investigating the oil conditions on the coast. He has been especially interested in methods of conserving gasoline, and his reports to his bureau has attracted much attention, his articles on the subject having been syndicated and given wide circulation.

To Visit Catalina
It was interesting to note that the guest list on this occasion included two daughters and two sons and three grandsons representing the children of Rev. Blackburn, all of whom have either resided in Glendale or have been frequent visitors here during the past eighteen years. It included the accomplished guests Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Dow, of Oklahoma, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Blackburn, of Hollywood, formerly of Montana, Miss Mary Blackburn, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Byrkit, Miss Elizabeth Byrkit, Wakefield B. Byrkit, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lamson, of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Blackburn and Robert Blackburn of Glendale and the hosts Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Blackburn, of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Dow will visit Catalina this week and later will go to Bakersfield where Mr. Dow will visit the San Joaquin valley oil fields.

WILL REPORT ON SUMMER SCHOOL

Secretary Sanders to Submit Summary to C. C. Board At Early Meeting

E. F. Sanders, secretary of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, who returned on Saturday from Palo Alto, where he had been attending the short course of the annual summer school in Community Leadership at the Leland Stanford university, is preparing a report on the subjects studied at the course, and will submit it to the directors, stressing those subjects that are considered of especial interest to Glendale and its civic development.

Commercial secretaries from many Pacific coast cities were in attendance at the university, and lectures on every possible phase of civic growth, with special reference to the relations borne to such growth by Chambers of Commerce, were delivered by experts from all over the country, who showed where these organizations can aid and direct sentiment in the activities of the cities where they are operating.

In Formative Stage
California, and especially the southern part of the state, it was pointed out, is now in a formative stage, and Chambers of Commerce are needed more here than in any other portion of the country, to aid and advise in the development of the community activities that may be calculated to bring the best results.

Secretary Sanders was appointed as a member of the committee that is to plan for the course of study at the 1924 course and to canvass all the secretaries of Southern California to insure an attendance of 100 per cent at next year's course, and also to bring as many directors of Chambers of Commerce to the classes as possible.

Stunned by Grief
Mr. Sanders, who was in San Francisco last Friday, was in the Palace hotel at precisely the time that had been arranged for the late President Harding's visit to Glendale, and the hushed and grief-stricken throngs who filled the hotel, talking in whispers, was a most impressive display of the change that had come over the usually gay city of San Francisco. Mr. Sanders was permitted to visit the late president's funeral car before the body was placed on board.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 6.—An additional loan of $14,360 to meet the semi-monthly payroll of the State Printing Office has been negotiated by State Printer Frank Smith, it was announced today. The loan was made by the Sacramento branch of the Bank of Italy.

The printing office appropriation is tied-up as a result of budget litigation. The local bank also advanced the printery money with which to meet its payroll two weeks ago.

California State Banks Show Big Deposit Jump

A REMARKABLE increase in the gross deposits of California State banks is indicated in a bulletin issued lately by John Franklin Johnson, superintendent of banks, that covers the period from April 3 to June 30, last. The figures, based on the report to the State Banking Department, show a total increase of $44,484,855. The figures also show a great increase in the assets of the commercial, savings and trust departments of the State banks, indicating a healthy financial condition, it was declared by the banking experts. The report is especially favorable, it is said, in view of the fact that at this period of the year heavy demands are made on all of the banks for the purpose of harvesting and marketing the State's crops.

ARTIST SPEAKER TO ASSOCIATION

Mrs. Julia Steelman Nichols Gives Talk to Members And Their Friends

"California Artists" was chosen as the subject of a lecture by Mrs. Julia Steelman Nichols that was an unusual treat for the members and friends of the Glendale Art association that met in open session yesterday at the juvenile rooms of the public library.

Mrs. Nichols, art critic and collector, as well as an artist of ability, and lecturer on sciences, has been heard from the platform in almost every city in the state during the earlier and more active years of her life.

Her lecture was devoted to art as well as artists, especially touching upon the wonder field of nature on the west coast. The trails of the Yosemite, the coloring of the desert stretches, the beauties of Catalina, of San Diego, the mountain ranges, and especially Laguna, saying: "Even Italian skies give me no deeper a blue as does Laguna." "And our sunsets are not equalled, even in Greece."

By Local Artists
The canvases, now on display in the rooms, many of them by Glendale artists, were used in illustrating, in a most interesting way.

Miss Annie McIntyre, vice-president, presided at the meeting, in the absence of the president, Mrs. Roy Ballagh. It was undoubtedly one of the best programs that has been offered the art lovers of the city, and the association is fast becoming one of the live organizations of Glendale.

The next meeting of the association will be the Laguna picnic, Saturday, August 25, when all members will gather at the public library at 7 o'clock in the morning. Those desiring to remain over the week-end, it is announced, may communicate with Mrs. Ballagh, who will arrange accommodations for them at City.

PUBLIC TAKES PART IN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

Dr. William A. Brown of Los Angeles Speaks At Congregational Church At Union Services for Dead Executive

GLENDALE paid tribute yesterday afternoon at the Congregational church to the memory of the late president, Warren G. Harding, the services being held under the auspices of the Glendale Ministerial Association. Before a large audience that filled the beautiful new house of worship, Dr. William A. Brown, pastor of the University Methodist church of Los Angeles, delivered a powerful memorial address, evaluating the late president in the light of calm analysis and finding him "A good man, full of the Holy Ghost, and of faith," as Luke once said of Christ.

"God reigns—and the government at Washington still lives," quoted Dr. Brown from one of the historic episodes following the assassination and death of Lincoln. "God reigns in America. A special providence has carried us on. From the dawn of the nation upon this day, America has been God's work."

Right King of Leader
"Warren G. Harding was a special providence to America, the kind of a leader we needed in those perilous times following the war—a mighty, strong, calm, well-balanced man."

"We have not chosen our leaders. God has chosen them. Roosevelt, Wilson, Harding—they are God's men! Almost against our will, each of them was given us. But each proved to be the man most needed to guide America through that particular hour."

"There were many great traits in Harding's character, but none greater than his ability to make friends, unless it was his ability to make them work together after he had gathered them about him. He was the first man in the history of America who took for a Cabinet a team of individual stars—and made them work as one for our country."

Coolidge High Ideals
"And what of Calvin Coolidge? He, too, was of God's choosing. The least known man who ever assumed that high office of President of these United States, he is of all men in this great land best fitted. And why? Because he brings to the presidency a spiritual quality sorely needed in these troubled times."

"Calvin Coolidge is the New England conscience incarnate; From the cradle of this land, he comes to Washington bearing those high ideals that founded America."

"And what were the first words he said on assuming office? 'I have faith in God,' he said."

"And what of Mrs. Harding? No children had come to bless that union of over thirty years, though they had loved children with their whole hearts. One of the first official acts of President Harding, on coming to Washington, was to allow children to play on the White House grounds."

"And strangely enough, the flowers that were in his room when the end came were the gift of little children. Picture that homely scene, there in that hotel room, far from the center of the nation, the president sitting up in bed, while his loving wife read to him from a current magazine."

'Marvelous' Woman
"That is good," he said. "Go on. Read some more." And those were the last words he ever spoke."

"Then, as he lay cold in death, that marvelous woman, Mrs. Harding, turning to Rev. James S. West, pastor of the First Baptist church, who had just completed a brief service, said: 'I want you to look at his face. It was magnificent in life, but is more wonderful in death.'"

"So passed Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States. But the Republic endures."

The following Glendale ministers took part in yesterday afternoon's memorial services at the Congregational church: Rev. E. E. Ford, Rev. Philip K. Kemp, Dr. Henry I. Rasmus, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, Rev. Henry C. Funk, Rev. Cowan and Rev. C. M. Calderwood, pastor of the Congregational church.

The services were opened with an organ prelude, "Funeral March" (Chopin) by Miss Lilla E. Litch. "Prayer" (Engelmann) was then sung by a quartet comprising Mrs. Julia Franklin Head, Mrs. Beatrice H. Cavanah, Howard E. Cavanah and Myron Carman.

Rev. E. E. Ford then read the Forty-sixth Psalm, after which Rev. Henry C. Funk led the assembly in prayer.

The hymn "Before Jehovah's Awful Throne" was sung, and Dr. William A. Brown then delivered his stirring address, above reported.

The services were concluded, at the end of this address, with a prayer and benediction by Dr. Henry I. Rasmus, following the singing of the hymn "Nearer My God to Thee."

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—A trip into New York's famed East Side leaves one wondering why the inhabitants tolerate existing living conditions when the rest of the country offers them so much more opportunity for the things which make life really livable.

Books and magazine stories have failed to convey an accurate picture of this section of the teeming metropolis. One needs only to venture afoot into the East Side to learn that. The imaginative picture falls short of the reality.

Why do such conditions exist? There comes to mind only one answer, that of a writer who has made a study of them and has arrived at the conclusion that the inhabitants remain merely because of a reason purely relative, cause of a reason purely relative.

Conditions here are so much better than those of the Russia they knew before they became immigrants. Here, at least, they are assured of some sort of food and a place to sleep. Their present life is so vastly less hazardous than that to which they had become inured that they are content—not knowing evidently that the same frugality, industry and perseverance so typical of them, practiced almost anywhere else in the United States, would almost certainly bring success.

Inversely proportionate to the surprise a faring forth into the East Side brings is the disappointment experienced when the "provincial" visits about that district of the savory Bowery known far and wide as Chinatown. Mott, Pell and Doyers streets are not much different from others in the vicinity and seem to indicate that the Chinatown of yore is no more. If there is a Chinatown it is underground, and what cannot be seen cannot be justly gauged.

The war on Chinatown and its disappearance is really scarce.

While on the momentous topic, for the benefit of the out-of-towners, let it be recorded that at present beer is retailing in the city at twenty cents the glass—two good mouthfuls. The bartenders say that in a test it will prove 6 per cent alcohol, and the after effect doesn't dispute this contention. But don't move here for the sake of the beer. New York is crowded enough as it is—and good beer is really scarce.

RADIO

BY FRANK CHAPMAN

A STEP OF TUNED RADIO

With the addition of another tube, a potentiometer, variable condenser, a small inductance and another B battery, a stage of tuned radio frequency may be added to your set to increase its range during the warm weather that usually affects out-of-town stations. The rest of your single circuit set, or double circuit set, may be used with a few changes in the wiring.

The layout of the equipment is shown as though mounted on a board or table. We first have a variable-coupler or loose coupler, a variable condenser of .0005 microfarad capacity, a potentiometer of about 250 or 400 ohms, a filament rheostat, back of them the amplifying tube, then the small inductance (it can be a 35-turn coil, lateral or honeycomb coil) and the other .0005 variable condenser, the grid leak and condenser.

Although the State Prohibition Enforcement act has been repealed and there have been rumors of the city's being "wide open," New York's prohibition status has not materially changed, according to natives approached on the subject. It's just as easy here to get a quart or called of whiskey as it is in any other city or town. It all depends, in the last analysis, on knowledge of the "open sesame."

Broadway is as dry or wet—any way you'll have it—as it was a month ago, or when the Mul-lan-Gage law was being enforced, natives say.

The clubs "carry on," enforcement or not. One with which the writer is particularly familiar finds it so difficult to get the joy fluid at "get-togethers" it is put out in pitchers, with "Help Yourself" signs hung on them. And they say it's good stuff, too.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SALT WELL

"Uncle Wiggily! Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" squealed a jolly voice just outside the hollow stump bungalow of the rabbit gentleman one morning.

"Well, what is it?" asked Mr. Longears, as he saw Floppy and Curly Twistytail, the piggy boys, on the back stoop.

"If you take him, will you take me?" asked Curly.

"Take you where?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know. "I am not going any place special, except to look for an adventure. Did you want to come with me and look for one?"

"Oh, we thought you were going to the seashore again," said Floppy. "And, if you do, will you take me? I want to splash in the salty ocean."

"So do I!" squealed Curly. "Please take me!"

"And we'd like to go, also," barked another voice, as Jackie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boy, crawled out from under a bush.

"If you take Jackie, will you take me?" someone else whined, and Peetie Bow Wow, the other little puppy, crawled out of a hole he had dug in the sand.

"I say now, my dear chaps—look here, you know!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose. "I can't take all of you to the seashore. I'd like to, but I can't. Besides, I'm not going again for a week."

"Oh, dear!" sighed Curly Twistytail. "We thought you were going again, and could take us."

"I'd like a bath in the salt sea waves!" barked Jackie.

"So would I!" spoke the voice of Sammie Littlelamb, the rabbit.

"My goodness! Another one!" cried Uncle Wiggily as he saw Sammie. "Why, it would be a regular excursion if I took you to the seashore! I'd like to do it, but—"

"What we most want," said Peetie, asking Uncle Wiggily's pardon for interrupting, "what we most want is a salt water swim—it's so hot here!"

"Yes!" cried the other animal boys, "if we could splash in the cold salt water it would be fine."

Uncle Wiggily pinked his twink nose—oh, excuse me, I mean he twinkled his pink nose—and then he said:

"Ah, wait a minute, boys! I have an idea! If you just want a salt water bath, I can fix it."

"How?" asked Sammie. "Can you bring a big tub full of the salt ocean water up here?"

"Big salt well for you all to swim in!" laughed the bunny gentleman. "Come on, now, you must all help. Get busy and dig me a big hole in the ground."

So the doggies and the piggies and Sammie the rabbit dug and dug and dug with their feet, and sometimes the piggy boys dug with their rubbery noses, until they had made a deep round hole in the earth. Then Uncle Wiggily took the hose and filled the hole with water.

"Now, all it needs is a bit of salt," said the rabbit uncle, "and it will be almost like the ocean."

So he got some salt from Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy's kitchen and sprinkled the salt in the water, stirring it up well.

"Jump in now, boys!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "It's as nearly like the ocean as I can make it."

"Hurray!" shouted the animal boys, and in they jumped. They splashed about, having lots of fun, and soon they were very cool. A little wind sprang up and made small waves on the salt well swimming hole—not as large waves as at the ocean, but good enough. And then, all of a sudden, while Uncle Wiggily and the animal boys were splashing in the salt well pool, along came the Fuzzy Fox.

"I'm going to nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears!" howled the Fox. "Get away from here, if you please, or I'll splash water on you!" bravely barked Jackie Bow Wow.

"Pooh! I'm not afraid of water!" sneered the Fox. But Jackie splashed water on him, and when the water, which was very salty, dribbled into the mouth of the Fox, he howled:

"Oh, wow! What is this? Oh, so salty! Oh, my mouth is all puckered up small so I can't even bite a strawberry! Oh, wow!"

They all said Jackie was very brave, and I think so myself. Anyhow, the Fox didn't nibble the bunny's ears. And if the phonograph doesn't take one of the piano keys to unlock the bird cage and let the gold fish out, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily writing a letter.

"MOVIES EXCEL BOOKS FOR EDUCATING CHILDREN," SAYS EDISON

"There is nothing so powerful as motion pictures in influencing people," said Thomas Edison, world-famous inventor, recently. "They are the most powerful means of influencing people at the present time and will increase in power from year to year. Whoever controls the motion picture industry controls the most powerful medium of influence over the people."

"I think motion pictures have just started. It is my opinion that in twenty years pictures will be taught through pictures and not through books."

Edison said that he regarded moving pictures as 100 per cent perfect for teaching. They could influence people mightily for good or bad, in the moral sense. They were the best means for the dissemination of knowledge, especially among children. He said he believed that children were more susceptible to education through the screen than persons over twenty years of age—more susceptible to good and bad influences alike.

"I have made numbers of investigations along the line of teaching children by other methods than books," Edison stated. "I made an experiment with a lot of pictures to teach children chemistry. I got twelve children to write down what they had learned from the pictures they had seen. It was amazing to me that such a complicated subject as chemistry was readily grasped by them to a large extent through pictures. The parts of the pictures that they did not understand I did over and over again, until they finally understood the entire pictures."

"THE THEATRES SHOULD BE MUNICIPALLY OWNED," SAYS DRAMATIST

The theatre should be made just as much a part of municipal government as libraries, hospitals, clean streets and clean water," says Henry Arthur Jones, noted English dramatist. "It is the next big step. The theatre should create those equal necessities of decent human life; the things that refresh our minds and spirits. The drama is a question of the greatest social importance and significance, as it concerns the amusement of the masses, the way in which they spend their evening hours of leisure—the only hours in which nine-tenths of our population can be said to live at all. I do not think our present system of long runs for one star in one play tends to make real actors. To play one production 300 or 400 times makes them automatons, and their work mechanical."

REQUIEM
Under the wide and starry sky,
Dig the grave and let me lie.
Glad did I live and gladly die,
And I laid me down with a will.

This be the verse you grave for me:
"Here he lies where he longed to be;
Home is the sailor, home from sea,
And the hunter home from the hill."

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

J. WALTER DRAKE

Assistant Secretary of Commerce J. Walter Drake, who has been charged with the duty of encouraging American export business in general, but with a particular reference to automobile products, is a native of Michigan and is 48 years of age.

He was for many years chairman of the export committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which, it was held, particularly fitted him for the job as assistant secretary of commerce.

For many years he was chairman of the board of the Hupp Motor Car Company and was a leader in advancing American automobile trade abroad by bringing about intelligent co-operation in export efforts among automobile makers.

Born at Sturgis, Mich., Drake attended public schools, from which he was graduated. Later he graduated from the Detroit College of Law and began the practice of it in Detroit.

During the Spanish-American war Drake served on board the U. S. S. Yosemite.

He is president of the Hupp Motor Company, director in the Detroit Pressed Steel Company, Denby Motor Company, in which Secretary of the Navy Denby is in-

DINNER STORIES

Several persons standing at the entrance to the apartment house were discussing the theft of two automobile tires from a beautiful car which was "parked" in front of the house. The dusky elevator operator was in the group, and he was the center of interest because he had seen the thieves running away. Said one man to the boy, teasingly, "Say, Pete, why did you let those men get away with the tires?" The boy answered excitedly: "Yes, suh! I see them men runnin' 'round the corner with the tires, but this chasin' 'round is dangerous business. There's gona be plenty moh automobile tires, but there ain't gona be another Pete!"

Little Willie had been sent to the store for the groceries. There was 15 cents in change left over, and Willie was sure, according to his arithmetical prowess, that the grocer had made a mistake. So interested, and the Detroit Bar Association, among many other Detroit concerns.

It is understood that Secretary of the Navy Denby, with whom Drake has been on close friendly relations for many years, was largely instrumental in his appointment by President Harding.

Drake is confident that America will not lose her dominance in the foreign field in selling automobiles and other exports. He knows automobiles from top to bottom and is confident that American manufacturers can produce a better car for less money than any European country.

he bought 15 cents' worth of jelly beans. However, on his way home he conscientiously sat down to do the sum over again, and much to his amazement found that the grocer was right. So, being an honest little gentleman at heart, the jelly beans remained in his back pocket untouched.

Later he was slowly placing the basket of groceries upon the kitchen table when the blow fell. "Well, Willie," said his economical mother, "where is the 15 cents change?"

Willie gulped. "Ma," he asked slowly, "do you like jelly beans?"

"No, I don't think I do," replied ma. "Well, you're going to," said Willie.

A Weep in Time

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY
— Ad Schuster

In the Pink Front Restaurant the help knew her as the girl who was always alone. She sat in the corner, a neat and attractive figure in her business suit and, as she was a steady customer, was the subject of speculation.

"I figures it she is lonely and doesn't know how to get acquainted," Minnie Swope confided to another waitress. "She's the kind that's particular. More than likely she tells herself, over and over, a perfect lady isn't the sort who will make acquaintances everywhere."

The girl paused and surveyed the subject of her conversation critically. "If it wasn't for that," she said, "I'd bet she would have smiled long ago at his highness."

His highness was a tall youth with pompadour hair and manner of extreme politeness. Every day he and the girl ate at the Pink Front until each regarded the other as an old acquaintance. And yet they never spoke. Marie Lane would have been ashamed had he caught her even stealing a glance in his direction, and his highness was one who understood a situation.

"If I so much as smile at her," he bemoaned, "my chances will be gone. I've got to stick it out and wait for something to happen."

"It's silly, that's what it is," Marie told herself. "Here am I, all alone, without a friend of my age in all this city and without the ability to make one. Wonder how much I would have to subtract from my rating as a perfect lady if I would just bow to that man?" She blushed at the idea, thought of dropping her handkerchief and a dozen other expedients. "They are all so hackneyed, he'd see through it at once and then what would he think?"

By accident Marie learned something of the story of his highness. She was found out that he was regarded with favor by his employers.

"Knowing this," she argued, "it would not be so bad, now would it, if I smiled at him?"

A girl who had been brought up with all the care two maiden aunts could bestow and laden with warnings of the dangers of the great city tried hard to nerve herself to the simple task of smiling. There will be some who cannot understand her feelings and others will share the feelings of Marie. Ask the president of the city's largest bank to stand on his head in the center of Main Street and you ask no more than when you put the request to a New England girl of Marie's sort to smile at a man to whom she has not been introduced.

Marie tried, but the smile was all in her heart and her intention. Her frightened face refused to respond. She admitted defeat. His highness was oblivious to the drama around Marie was surprised to see that no one in the room seemed aware, even that she was there.

"I am like a fixture," she said. "They take me for granted."

His highness looked up from his rib steak medium and saw Marie weeping. The girl, the beautiful girl who was always so calm and superior, was in trouble. "Can I help you?" he asked, and he sat down at her table to put the question. Marie shook her head.

"What is the trouble? Is it financial?"

Again the shake of the head. "Try to compose yourself. Everything will be all right." He knew this was not convincing, but there was nothing else to say. "I say, the cool air outside will brace you up," the girl arose and Vance escorted her to the street.

"They forgot to pay their checks," the cashier remarked, "but never mind, I'll nab them tomorrow."

The girl who had sobbed at the table was smiling happily all through an extremely sad movie. "It was only," she explained to her companion, "that I was lonely. I don't know a soul—or at least, I didn't."

They sat at the same table now and make a jolly ceremony of it.

"I'm thankful," Marie often says to herself, "that I can weep whenever I wish, and that the idea came to me just then."

SEEKS TO MARRY RICH HEIRESS

'Crank' Would Like Dowry Of $1,000,000

"A proper introduction" to Miss Muriel Vanderbilt, beautiful and noted heiress, and a "$1,000,000 marriage settlement" was sought in a letter sent to Miss Vanderbilt's father. He turned the missive over to the police. Later Walter Kasser, 32, was arrested. He was sent to the psychiatric ward at Bellevue for observation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Walter F. Kasser was arrested in his room at 135 East Sixtieth street because he tried to combine letter writing and free advice with the humdrum of carpentering. W. K. Vanderbilt, Premier Poincare and President Harding were some of the notables to whom he offered his advice.

Several days ago Kasser wrote to Mr. Vanderbilt complaining that Miss Muriel Vanderbilt was not paying attention to his serious intentions. Only the other week he had written to her, making an appointment for Rockville Centre, and when he got there he found he was alone. This sort of thing, in the opinion of Mr. Kasser, should not be done, but he declared that he would overlook it this time. A dowry of about $1,000,000, he added, would be the right thing for Mr. Vanderbilt to bring to the marriage.

In order to keep his message from going astray the carpenter put his address on the envelope. Detectives James Smith and Harry Lavan called on the "suitor" and they said that they found a number of clippings and letters in his room. For instance, Kasser wrote to the president suggesting that he (Kasser) was the logical candidate for secretary of the interior. He also criticized the woman voter, and Miss Mary Garrett Hay in particular.

"France had better pull these French soldiers out of Germany," cautioned Kasser to Poincare, "or I'll be forced to join the Russian army and drive them out."

Side Talks

PEOPLE WHO ENRICH US

Fifteen years ago a dear friend of mine was called from college to her mother's bedside. Her mother had unexpectedly had to have a serious operation and the doctors doubted if she would recover. She did recover, but for years she was a semi-invalid, at first in bed, then able to get about the house, finally able to get out a little under the most favorable circumstances.

This was the condition the last time I heard from my friend. When I met her the other day I asked about her mother with that timidity we feel when we do not know but what we may be touching upon a grief.

"Oh, my mother's fine," she said. "She and father are going abroad next winter."

You can imagine how that took my breath away!

Begins to Travel at Sixty

And then she went on to say that her mother had also been traveling about this country for the last year or two, and she had always dreamed of doing before she was sick.

And her mother is a woman well over 60!

While there is life and courage, there is certainly hope!

Her mother has not been the subject of any miraculous cure. She has simply made her slow way back to health, helped out by courage and optimism. And now that she has won back part of her health, she has not been afraid, because of her advancing years, to do the things she has always wanted to do.

BEAUTY CHATS

NAIL HINTS

Few things are so capable of changing a woman's appearance as the state of her finger nails. Stained, cracked, rough nails make her look careless, though they may be the result of far too much hard work. Well manicured nails go a long way toward making a woman well groomed. As a young friend of mine put it: "I always feel as though I'd put on a brand new dress when I've had my nails done."

The most important thing to consider always is the sort of soap and water used upon the hands. Hard water dries the skin of the hands and of the nails, too; coarse, cheap soap is just as bad. If the water is not naturally soft, use hard water soap which softens it or add a little ammonia to it; and, whenever you can, wash the hands with oatmeal soap. Never use anything too strong to remove stains and dirt; lemon juice or ammonia will take off most marks. Grease rubbed over the hands will heal the skin and soften the stain so ordinary washing later on will make nails or skin as white as you could wish.

When you must work hard, coat the nails and the hand with heavy grease, petroleum jelly or lard, though the grease will attract dirt, it will keep it on the surface, it won't let it into the pores and the ordinary washing will cleanse the skin afterward. Here's a very good nail cream:

Cuticle Cream
Synthetic Ambrol.....2 drops
Oil of Rose (Lilientine).....2 drops
Paraffin or Beeswax.....2 drams
White Oil or Petroleum.....6 drams
Scrub oil and wax and add the other ingredients, stir and cool. This cream is also astringent, it will help keep back the fast growing cuticle and will save you much time in manicuring.

Candy

No series of articles on Diet for Children and Adults would be complete without a chapter on candy. For, when we think of candy we think of childhood. Because it is during childhood that the most candy is consumed. (The F. F. F.—our friendly, fat, fraternality—also consume much. Much too much.) Candy is so common in childhood that we use the phrase, "As easy as taking candy from a baby," as a comparison.

In reality, there is no foundation for that phrase. Those of us who have ever tried to take candy away from a baby know that there is no ease connected with it. If you want to precipitate a rough house, start taking candy from a baby, no matter what age! This brings up a picture to our minds which shows the craving for candy by children, if it has been cultivated in them. For the craving for candy is a cultivated habit.

Is the candy habit dangerous? There is no doubt that it is. The very expression, "candy habit," indicates that. Candy is a habit-forming food as much as alcohol is a habit-forming drink. I know, for I have had the habit; and if an alcoholic craves alcohol more than I did candy—and do even yet, at times—I am sorry for him.

It has been maintained by some writers that candy eaten in excess causes an alcoholic fermentation.

more now than there used to be. Anyhow, it seems to me that I am hearing of them all the time, these folks who live their life by living all of it instead of only part of it.

And every time I hear of them I feel a sense of gratitude. They have not only made their own lives richer, but have helped enrich yours and mine by their encouragement that we may some day do likewise.

MARCHING LEGION

Piloting "The American Legionnaire," official entry of recent national elimination balloon race which started from Indianapolis, Capt. Charles E. McCullough of Baltimore was forced to the ground at Frankfort Springs, Pa., near Pittsburgh, when the balloon was crushed flat at an altitude of 20,000 feet by a "storm collision."

Captain McCullough and his aide, Lieut. Carlton F. Bond of Aberdeen, Md., were saved from death by throwing everything overboard, even the oxygen tanks, and by landing in the branches of a butternut tree after falling from a height of 20,000 feet. The balloon was caught by converging storms from the northeast and the southeast. Had there been no storms, the Legion balloon would have reached the Atlantic seaboard, according to Captain McCullough. It had traveled a distance of 350 miles.

During the journey messages from National Commander Alvin Owsley of the Legion were dropped from the balloon. They were addressed to commanders of Legion posts and were released suspended from tiny parachutes.

Both Captain McCullough and Lieutenant Bond are members of the American Legion. Captain McCullough is vice chairman of the Legion's national committee on aeronautics. During the war he was attached to various balloon schools and has made many flights. He personally supervised arrangements for the American tours of the king and queen of Belgium, Marshal Foch, the Prince Regent of Spain and other European notables. He is a division passenger agent of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Lieutenant Bond was in the basket with Major Westover, who won the 1922 national balloon race which started from Milwaukee.

When the Americanization committee, I'll tell you about that tomorrow.

POEMS THAT LIVE

FROM THE SPANISH OF VILLE-GRAS

To gaze upon the green Spring,
To gaze upon the wakening fields around;
Birds in the thicket sing,
Winds whisper, waters prattle
from the ground.
A thousand odors rise,
Breathed up from blossoms of a thousand dyes.

Shadowy and close, and cool,
The pine and poplar keep their quiet nook;
Forever fresh and full,
Shines at their feet the thirsty
inviting brook;
And the soft herbage seems Spread for a place of banquets and of dreams.

Thou, who alone art fair,
And whom alone I love, art far away.
Unless thy smile be there,
It makes me sad to see the earth
so gay;
I care not if the train
Of leaves, and flowers, and zephyrs go again.

Kidney Bean Stew: Put into a pot one tablespoon of butter or suet; when melted, add one onion, minced, and one chopped green pepper and let cook ten minutes. Then add one pound of chopped lean beef, one can of kidney beans and one can of tomato soup. Simmer for an hour and serve hot.—(Contributed by Mrs. E. N. K.)

Pot Roast of Beef: Buy a three or four pound piece of beef from the shoulder and sear it on all sides in a few tablespoons of beef drippings. Put it in a large pot, add one cup of water, two onions cut in quarters, one teaspoon of salt, a generous dash of pepper and one tablespoon of mixed pickling spices. Cover the pot closely and let simmer for four hours. Toward the end of this cooking period add a little more hot water and as many pared potatoes as you need to serve your family. Serve when the potatoes are done.

Pineapple-Cheese Salad: Put crisp lettuce leaves on individual salad plates. Place a slice of pineapple on each plate, on the bed of lettuce, and top with a little mound of cream cheese which you have pressed through a wide-meshed strainer. Serve with any desired dressing.

Potato Salad: Boil pared potatoes till done, then slice them into a salad dish. While they are still warm mix with them the following sauce: Put into a saucepan one-half cup of vinegar, one-fourth cup of hot water, one-half teaspoon of salt, three tablespoons of sugar, two tablespoons of butter, a dash of paprika and one teaspoon of minced raw onion; boil these ingredients together for fifteen minutes, then pour it over the hot potatoes. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve.—(Contributed by M. M.)

Sponge Gingerbread: Cream together one heaping tablespoon of butter and one-half cup of sugar; add one beaten egg, one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of sour milk in which one teaspoon of soda has been dissolved, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of ground ginger and, last, one and one-half cups of pastry flour (ordinary bread flour may be used, instead, if two teaspoons of dry cornstarch are added to a cupful. This makes bread flour very similar to pastry flour). Turn the batter into a buttered pan and bake for twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven.
